

Grant McCracken:

"A Reverse Chronological Look At The Frivolous Pursuit Of The American Dream"

2012: World ends anyways, so much for all that effort... Dies alone.

2011: Makes you a TON of money. Gets promoted.

2010: Begins working for you.

2010: Can't find a real job, turns to alternative means such as non-traditional resumes and facebook ads. Considers a life of crime.

2010: Realizes that actual competency and abilities come second to "just knowing the right people."

2010: Realizes he's a pretty good writer.

2010: Is not a Dallas Cowboy, policeman, or fireman. Instead, is a retail clerk. Cries.

2009 (May): Graduates Magna Cum Laude from California State University-Fresno with a BA in communication.

2006: Finally adopts gmail— gmanradionetwerk@gmail.com

2006: Co-creates Borne Microsystems— a small business venture in the computing sector.

2006: First cell phone— 559-261-5195 (kept the number ever since).

2005 (June): Graduates from Coalinga High School with honors.

2005: Begins the first of many menial minimum wage jobs.

2000: Builds first computer by himself.

2000: Is too fast of a learner, skips the 8th grade.

1995-2005: Pulls too many weeds/digs too many trenches to count.

1995: Destined to be a Dallas Cowboy, fireman, and policeman in 15 years.

1988: Born.